Criticism of our contemporaries is not criticism; it is conversation.

Credited to LEMAITRE by BRANDER MATTHEWS, see New York Times, April 2, 1922.

The pressure of public opinion is like the pressure of the atmosphere; you can't see it — but, all the same it is sixteen pounds to the square inch.

LOWELL — In an interview with JULIAN HAWTHORNE; see article by BRANDER MATTHEWS in New York Times, April 2, 1922.

PREFACE

To Amalthea, the nurse of his infancy, Zeus gave a magic horn of plenty, which by his grace was over-brimming no matter what was taken from it. This new edition of a standard work, like the famous cornucopia, contains a freshened and replenished store. In the garnering of this rich harvest of fruits culled from the vast fields of literature, tribute has been taken from every tree in our literary Eden, so that the reader may share in common with his fellow creatures, not only the kindly fruits of the earth, but also the golden apples plucked from the tree of the knowledge of good and of evil. Since divine discontent is wholesome, we may expect to find some apples of discord as well as of love, the apples of Sodom and of Cain, and a modicum of dead sea fruit. Something there will be of distasteful growth, but the weed's plain heart holds a secret though 'tis shallow rooted. Many a way-side flower in a crannied nook has carried a message to an humble heart, and because its bloom has attracted public attention, it warrants a place among the choicer blossoms in this horn of plenty filled for all sorts and conditions of men.

The effort of the compiler has been to make the collection the most complete that has ever been gathered within the covers of a book. There has been provided

"Fruit of all kinds, in coat

Rough, or smooth rind, or bearded husk, or shell."

of which Milton sang in Paradise Lost.

In seeking enrichment of his own ideas, a speaker or writer is more concerned with the flavor and odor of the flower or fruit than with its progenitor, therefore the compiler, in gathering and preserving the "wisdom of the wise and experience of the ages," labels each specimen according to its quality (Topical arrangement) rather than source (Author arrangement).

The latter need is amply met by a biographical index wherein authors are paged. Thus like is with like, and an index to topics, with cross references, links up combinations of relating attraction.

The phrases which are "the parole of literary men the world over," form the basic value of the work. The compiler's blue pencil has hesitated over the prolific output of the "moderns," for public taste is fickle and what is popular to-day is padding to-morrow.

In these stirring times the press has teemed with utterances of prominent people, but records are inaccurate and unreliable, as has been tested through personal letters.

Locke states: "He that has but ever so little examined the citations of writers cannot doubt how little credit the quotations deserve where the originals are wanting; and consequently, how much less quotations of quotations can be relied on."

Many omissions may be accounted for by the fact that men of action often prefer the gold of silence to the speech of silver, but on the whole, the Biographical Index is a Who's Who of authors of all times.

It has not been easy to follow Dr. Routh's advice, "always to verify your references," for editions, texts and authorities differ. At times only a hint of an authority has been available, but rather than lose an item of value it has been deemed best to retain a meager suggestion in hope of future discovery.

It may be claimed for this work, without fear of contradiction, that no other of its kind contains so full an array of material under topics; none with such a representation of modern writers and speakers; no other includes such a record of modern war phrases, songs and poems; nowhere else are kindred thoughts and expressions so closely connected by cross references that they may be compared, and in no other collection of quotations have the nerves and arteries of the contents been laid open so plainly through so comprehensive and complete a concordance.

Topics have been chosen for their general character, so that similar ideas might not be too widely separated, which is a fault of too detailed subdivision.

The compiler takes comfort in the words of Cotton Mather: "Reader, Carthage was of the mind that unto those three things which the ancients held to be impossible, there should be added this fourth; to find a book without Erratas. It seems the hands of Briareus and the eyes of Argus will not prevent them."

Whatever degree this work has attained in the achievement of the impossible, it owes to MR. LEANDER J. DEBEKKER, the Briareus and Argus of the printed page and its literary contents. Appreciation and gratitude are but feebly expressed in this tribute to his services.

Acknowledgment is due to MESSRS. HARPER & BROS. for permission to use the lines written by Peter Newell found on pages 280 and 538.

KATE LOUISE ROBERTS.

PLAN OF THE BOOK, AND DIRECTIONS FOR USING IT

The reader is reminded that this work is a book of literary gems selected with a view to their usefulness in suggesting ideas for practical application in literary composition and not a mere collection of familiar quotations to serve as a remembrancer to such as may wish to refresh their memories. Therefore, quotations drawn from standard authors and familiar in our mouths as household words, have not been included because concordances of the works of these authors already exist. Every student of Shakespeare should know of the concordances to Shakespeare, Wordsworth, and other poets.

The quotations are arranged under topics according to their general meaning, sense, or idea. The topics are in alphabetical order, as are the authors under the topics. An Index to Topics, with cross reference to kindred ones, will be found on page xi.

The Concordance at the end of the book is a word-index of the text of each quotation. Identifying words are generously indexed, so that the lines may be traced through several channels in case the memory fails in exact reading. Enough of the context is given to identify the lines. After each excerpt the page and numerical order on the page is noted.

The Biographical Index is a record of men and women of all ages and nationalities whose words, thoughts, and visions have been passed along into the minds and speech of the people. Under each author's full name is given his nationality, dates of birth and death (L for living), also a brief character sketch, and the numbers of the pages whereon his lines appear.

To find an appropriate quotation for a definite subject, turn to a topic dealing with such an idea, and consult the Topical Index for related headings.

For the exact text of a quotation, or its authority, consult the Concordance. When exact words are not remembered try synonymous ones, or topics on such subjects. If the author alone is remembered, consult the Biographical Index.

When a topic does not give all that may be sought on a subject, consult the Concordance as quotations may contain, as a whole, ideas which have placed them elsewhere.

When quotations from a special author only are desired, consult the Biographical Index where pages are given on which are found that author's lines.

When modern authors are wanted, choose from the Biographical Index, according to dates given of birth and death.

To find priority of authorship, consult Biographical Index for dates of authors' birth and death.

The plays and poems of Shakespeare and the books of the Bible are given in italics without the names of the authors.

Full names of well-known authors are often omitted.

Popular abbreviations and pen-names are given when established as better known to the public. (Bernard Shaw, Oscar Wilde, George Eliot, Artemus Ward.) The Biographical Index supplies full names and has ample cross references.

ACTING; THE STAGE (See also WORLD)

Farce follow'd Comedy, and reach'd her prime, In ever-laughing Foote's fantastic time, Mad wag! who pardon'd none, nor spared the best,

And turn'd some very serious things to jest Nor church nor state escaped his public sneers, Arms nor the gown, priests, lawyers, volunteers, "Alas, poor Yorick!" now forever mute! Whoever loves a laugh must sigh for Foote. We smile, perforce, when histrionic scenes Ape the swoln dialogue of kings and queens, When "Chrononhotontologos must die," And Arthur struts in mimic majesty BYRON—Hints from Horace. L. 329.

As good as a play
Saying ascribed to CHARLES II while listening to a debate on Lord Ross's Divorce Bill.

In all me time (the stage's prime!) and The Other One was Booth
EDMUND VANCE COOKE—The Other One was Booth

I think I love and reverence all arts equally, only putting my own just above the others, because in it I recognize the union and culmination of my own To me it seems as if when God conceived the world, that was Poetry, He formed it, and that was Sculpture, He colored it, and that was Painting, He peopled it with living beings, and that was the grand, divine, eternal Drama

CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN

See, how these rascals use me! They will not let my play run, and yet they steal my thunder
JOHN DENNIS—See Biographia Britannica Vol V. P 103.

Like hungry guests, a sitting audience looks Plays are like suppers, poets are the cooks The founder's you the table is this place The carvers we the prologue is the grace Each act, a course, each scene, a different dish, Though we're in Lent, I doubt you're still for flesh

Satire's the sauce, high-season'd, sharp and rough Kind masks and beaux, I hope you're pepper-proof?

Wit is the wine, but 'tis so scarce the true Poets, like vintners, balderdash and biew Your surly scenes, where rant and bloodshed join.

Are butcher's meat, a battle's sirlon. Your scenes of love, so flowing, soft and chaste, Are water-gruel without salt or taste

J. C AND A. W HARE—Guesses at Truth.

It's very hard! Oh, Dick, my boy, It's very hard one can't enjoy A little private spouting, But sure as Lear or Hamlet lies, Up comes our master, Buncle and gives The tragic Muse a routing.

Prince of Denmark being left out SCOTT—The Talsman Introduction.

¹²
If it be true that good wine needs no bush,
'tis true that a good play needs no epilogue
As You Like It Epilogue. L 3

¹³
Like a dull actor now,
I have forgot my part, and I am out,
Even to a full disgrace.
CORIOLANUS. Act V Sc 3 L 40.

¹⁴
Good, my lord, will you see the players well bestowed? Do you hear, let them be well used, for they are the abstract and brief chronicles of the time after your death you were better have a bad epitaph than their ill report while you live

Hamlet. Act II Sc 2. L 545

¹⁵
Is it not monstrous that this player here,
But in a fiction, in a dream of passion,
Could force his soul so to his own conceit
That from her working all his visage wann'd.

Hamlet. Act II Sc 2 L 577

¹⁶
What's Hecuba to him, or he to Hecuba, That he should weep for her? What would he do.

Had he the motive and the cue for passion
That I have? He would drown the stage with tears

Hamlet Act II Sc 2 L 585.

¹⁷
I have heard
That guilty creatures sitting at a play,
Have, by the very cunning of the scene,
Been struck so to the soul that presently
They have proclaim'd their malefactions,
For murder, though it have no tongue, will speak

With most miraculous organ

Hamlet Act II. Sc 2 L 617

¹⁸
The play's the thing
Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the king
Hamlet Act II Sc 2 L 633

¹⁹
Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue, but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus, but use all gently, for in the very torrent, tempest, and, as I may say, the whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness

Hamlet Act III Sc 2. L 1

²⁰ Sut the action to the word, the word to the action, with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of nature

Hamlet Act III Sc 2 L 19

²¹ O, there be players that I have seen play, and heard others praise, and that highly, not to speak it profanely, that, neither having the accent of Christians nor the garb of Christian, pagan, nor man, have so strutted and bellowed that I have thought some of nature's journeymen had made men and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably

Hamlet Act III Sc 2 L 32

²²
A hit, a very palpable hit.

Hamlet Act V. Sc 2 L 294.

²³
Come, sit down, every mother's son, and rehearse your parts

Midsommer Night's Dream. Act III Sc. 1.

¹ Is there no play,
To ease the anguish of a torturing hour?
Midsummer Night's Dream Act V Sc 1.
L 36

² A play there is, my lord, some ten words long,
Which is as brief as I have known a play,
But by ten words, my lord, it is too long,
Which makes it tedious
L 61

³ As in a theatre, the eyes of men,
After a well-grac'd actor leaves the stage,
Are idly bent on him that enters next,
Thinking his prattle to be tedious
Richard II Act V Sc 2 L 23

⁴ I can counterfeit the deep tragedian;
Speak and look back, and pry on every side,
Tremble and start at wagging of a straw,
Intending deep suspicion
Richard III. Act III Sc 5 L 5.

⁵ A beggarly account of empty boxes
Romeo and Juliet Act V Sc 1. L 45.

⁶ And, like a strutting player, whose conceit
Lies in his hamstring, and doth think it rich
To hear the wooden dialogue and sound

⁹ The play is done, the curtain drops,
Slow falling to the prompter's bell

He shows, as he removes the mask,
A face that's anything but gay.

13 All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players
They have their exits and their entrances,
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages At first the infant, Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms
And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel
And shaming morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school And then the lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woeful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrow Then a soldier,
Full of strange oaths and bearded like the pard,
Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in quarrel,
Seeking the bubble reputation
Even in the cannon's mouth And then the justice,
In fair round belly with good capon lined,
With eyes severe and beard of formal cut,
Full of wise saws and modern instances,
And so he plays his part The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slipper'd pantalon,
With spectacles on nose and pouch on side,
His youthful hose, well saved, a world too wide
For his shrunk shank, and his big manly voice,
Turning again toward childish treble, pipes
And whistles in his sound Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness and mere oblivion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans every thing what I may, perhaps, be allowed to call spiritual efficiency—clear, disinterested thinking and fearless action along the right lines of thought America is not anything if it consists of each of us It is something only if it consists of all of us, and it can consist of all of us only as our spirits are banded together in a common enterprise That common enterprise is the enterprise of liberty and justice and right And, therefore, I, for my part, have a great enthusiasm for rendering America spiritually efficient; and that conception lies at the basis of what seems very far removed from it, namely, the plans that have been proposed for the military efficiency of this nation

² The power of perpetuating our property in our families is one of the most valuable and interesting circumstances belonging to it, and that which tends the most to the perpetuation of society itself. It makes our weakness subservient to our virtue, it grafts benevolence even upon avarice. The possession of family wealth and of the distinction which attends hereditary possessions (as most concerned in it,) are the natural securities for this transmission.

Will kill two for one, if you have any luck;

They carried a net, and their hearts were set

On fishing up the moon

THOMAS LOVE PEACOCK—The Wise Men of Gotham Paper Money Lyrics St 1

11
In genial spring, beneath the quivering shade,
Where cooling vapors breathe along the mead,
The patient fisher takes his silent stand,
Intent, his angle trembling in his hand,
With looks unmov'd, he hopes the scaly breed,
And eyes the dancing cork, and bending reed
POPE—Windsor Forest L 135

12
Give me mine angle, we'll to the river, there,
My music playing far off, I will betray
Tawny-finn'd fishes, my bended hook shall pierce
Their slimy jaws
Antony and Cleopatra Act II Sc 5 L 10

13
The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish
Cut with her golden oars the silver stream,
And greedily devour the treacherous bait
Much Ado About Nothing Act III Sc 1. L.

Such are the sea-fruits lasses love
Ho! to your nets till the blue stars twinkle,
And the shutterless cottages gleam above!

But should you lure

Of pendent trees, the Monarch of the brook,
Behoves you then to ply your finest art

We may say of angling as Dr Boteler said of strawberries "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did";
and so, (if I might be judge,) God never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling

O! the gallant fisher's life,
It is the best of any
'Tis full of pleasure, void of strife,
And 'tis beloved by many.

Other joys

Only this,
Lawful is,
For our skill
Breeds no ill,

But content and pleasure

Of recreation there is none
So free as fishing is, alone,
All other pastimes do not less Than mind and body, both possess:

My hand alone my work can do,
So I can fish and study too

Angler's Song*

The first men that our Saviour dear Did choose to wait upon Him here,

Food was, that He on earth did taste:

I therefore strive to follow those,
Whom He to follow Him hath chose

Antiquity, what is it else (God only excepted) but man's authority born some ages before us?
Now for the truth of things time makes no alteration, things are still the same they are, let the time be past, present, or to come

Those things which we reverence for antiquity what were they at their first birth? Were they false?—time cannot make them true Were they true?—time cannot make them more true

The circumstances therefore of time in respect of truth and error is merely impetinent

APPLE

Pyrus Malus

10 What plant we in this apple tree?
Sweets for a hundred flowery springs
To load the May-wind's restless wings,
When, from the orchard-row, he pours
Its fragrance through our open doors,
A world of blossoms for the bee,
Flowers for the sick girl's silent room,
For the glad infant sprigs of bloom,

We plant with the apple tree

⁴ Therefore when we build, let us think that we build (public edifices) forever. Let it not be for present delight, nor for present use alone, let it be such work as our descendants will thank us for, and let us think, as we lay stone on stone, that a time is to come when those stones will be held sacred because our hands have touched them, and that men will say as they look upon the labor and wrought substance of them, "See! this our fathers did for us."

then from the loftiest tree to the lowliest flower all felt a sudden thrill, and trembling, bowed

AUTUMN

15
Now Autumn's fire burns slowly along the woods,

And day by day the dead leaves fall and melt,
And night by night the monitory blast
Wails in the key-hole, telling how it pass'd
O'er empty fields, or upland solitudes,
Or grim wide wave, and now the power is felt
Of melancholy, tenderer in its moods
Than any joy indulgent Summer dealt

Sing now the lusty song of fruits and flowers

Sheltered in a golden coating;
O'er the dreamy, listless haze,

Very wonderful things, no doubt,

Hear the sledges with the bells,
Silver bells!
What a world of meriment their melody foretells!
How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,
In the icy air of night,
While the stars that oversprinkle
All the Heavens seem to twinkle
With a crystalline delight
Keeping time, time, time,
In a sort of Runic rhyme

There's no music to a knell,

3 Books, books, books!
I had found the secret of a garret room
Piled high with cases in my father's name, Piled high, packed large,—where, creeping in and out

Among the giant fossils of my past,
Like some small numble mouse between the ribs
Of a mastodon, I nibbled here and there
At this or that box, pulling through the gap,
In heats of terror, haste, victorious joy,
The first book first And how I felt it beat Under my pillow, in the morning's dark,
An hour before the sun would let me read!
My books!

At last, because the time was ripe,
I chanced upon the poets

Earth gets its price for what Earth gives us,
The beggar is taxed for a corner to die in,
The priest hath his fee who comes and shrives

We bargain for the graves we lie in,

 For a cap and bells our lives we pay,
 Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's tasking,
 'Tis heaven alone that is given away,
 'Tis only God may be had for the asking,

 June may be had by the poorest comer

A man must serve his time to every trade
Save censure—critics all are ready made
Take hackney'd jokes from Miller, got by rote,
With just enough of learning to misquote,

A turn for punning, call it Attic salt,
To Jeffrey go, be silent and discreet,
His pay is just ten sterling pounds per sheet,
Fear not to lie, 'twill seem a lucky hit,
Shrink not from blasphemy, 'twill pass for wit,
Care not for feeling—pass your proper jest,
And stand a critic, hated yet caress'd

DAY

3 Listen to the Exhortation of the Dawn!
Look to this Day! For it is Life,
The very Life of Life
In its brief course lie all the Varieties
And Realities of your Existence,
The Bliss of Growth,
The Glory of Action,
The Splendor of Beauty,
For Yesterday is but a Dream,
And Tomorrow is only a Vision,
But Today well lived
Makes every Yesterday a Dream of Happiness,
And every Tomorrow a Vision of Hope
Look well therefore to this Day!

Faithful friends! It lies I know
Pale and white and cold as snow;
And ye say, "Abdallah's dead!"
Weeping at the feet and head
I can see your falling tears,
I can hear your sighs and prayers, Yet I smile and whisper thus
I am not the thing you kiss.
Cease your tears and let it lie,
It was mine—it is not I

The death-change comes Death is another life We bow our heads
At going out, we think, and enter straight Another golden chamber of the king's,
Larger than this we leave, and lovelier
And then in shadowy glimpses, disconnect,
The story, flower-like, closes thus its leaves
The will of God is all in all He makes,
Destroys, remakes, for His own pleasure, all.

For in that sleep of death what dreams may come
Hamlet Act III Sc 1 L 66

⁹
Who would fardels bear,
To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after death,
The undiscover'd country from whose bourn
No traveller returns, puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of?
Hamlet Act III Sc. 1. L 76 ("These fardels"

A' made a finer end and went away an it had been any christom child, a' parted even just between twelve and one, e'en at the turning o' th' tide for after I saw him fumble with the sheets, and play with flowers, and smile upon his fingers' ends, I knew there was but one way for his nose was as sharp as a pen, and a' babbled of green fields "How now, Sir John?" quoth I
"what, man! be o' good cheer." So a' cried out—
"God, God, God!" three or four times Now I,
to comfort him, bid him a' should not think of God, I hoped there was no need to trouble him-

¹⁹
My sick heart shows
That I must yield my body to the earth,
And, by my fall, the conquest to my foe
Thus yields the cedar to the axe's edge,

Whose top-branch overpeer'd Jove's spreading tree,

And kept low shrubs from winter's powerful wind

8 First our pleasures die—and then Our hopes, and then our fears—and when These are dead, the debt is due,
Dust claims dust—and we die too.
SHELLEY—Death. (1820)

9 All buildings are but monuments of death,
All clothes but winding-sheets for our last knell,
All dainty fattings for the worms beneath,
All curious music but our passing bell
Thus death is nobly waited on, for why?
All that we have is but death's livery.

SHIRLEY.

10 Death calls ye to the crowd of common men.
SHIRLEY—Cupid and Death.

11 The glories of our blood and state

Narcissus, and the sweet brier rose,
Vervain, and flexile thyme, that breathe
Rich fragrance, modest heath, that glows

⁵ Of the various executive abilities, no one excited more anxious concern than that of placing the interests of our fellow-citizens in the hands of honest men, with understanding sufficient for their stations. No duty is at the same time more difficult to fulfill. The knowledge of character possessed by a single individual is of necessity limited. ¹⁷ That this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN—Speech at Gettysburg 1863 The phrase "of the people, for the people and by the people" is not original with Lincoln. There is a tradition that the phrase, "The Bible shall be for the government of the people, for the people and by the people," appears in the preface of the Wyclif Bible of 1384, or in the Hereford Bible, or in a pamphlet of the period treating of that version. See Notes and Queries, Feb. 12, 1916 P 127. Albert Mathews, of Boston, examined the reprint of 1850 of the Wyclif Bible, and finds no reference to it. There is a preface to the Old and the New Testament, and a prologue to each book, probably written by John Purvey. Phrase used by CLEON, Athenian demagogue, 430 B.C. There is what I call the American idea * * *
This idea demands, as the proximate organization thereof, a democracy,—that is, a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people, of course, a government of the principles of eternal justice, the unchanging law of God, for shortness' sake I will call it the idea of Freedom

16
First there is the democratic idea that all men are endowed by their creator with certain natural rights, that these rights are alienable only by the possessor thereof, that they are equal in men, that government is to organize these natural, unalienable and equal rights into institutions designed for the good of the governed, and therefore government is to be of all the people, by all the people, and for all the people Here government is development, not

HAREBELL

Campanula Rotundifolia

1
I love the fair lilies and roses so gay,
They are rich in their pride and their splendor,
But still more do I love to wander away
To the meadow so sweet,
Where down at my feet,
The harebell blooms modest and tender.
DORA READ GOODALE—Queen Harebell.

2
With drooping bells of clearest blue
Thou didst attract my childish view,
Almost resembling
The azure butterflies that flew
Where on the heath thy blossoms grew
So lightly trembling
BISHOP HEBBER—The Harebell

3 Simplest of blossoms! To mine eye
Thou bring'st the summer's painted sky;
The May-thorn greenening in the nook,
The minnows sporting in the brook,
The bleat of flocks, the breath of flowers;
The song of birds amid the bowers;
The crystal of the azure seas,
The music of the southern breeze,
And, over all, the blessed sun,
Telling of halcyon days begun.
MOIR—The Harebell.

4
High in the clefts of the rock 'mid the cedars
Hangeth the harebell the waterfall nigh;
Blue are its petals, deep-blue tinged with purple,
Mystical tints that mirror the sky.

Alas! my child, where is the Pen
That can do justice to the Hen?
Like Royalty, she goes her way,
Laying foundations every day,
Though not for Public Buildings, yet

Or if too old for such a use
They have their fling at some abuse
As when to censure Plays Unfit
Upon the stage they make a Hit
Or at elections seal the Fate
Of an Obnoxious Candidate
No wonder, Child, we prize the Hen,
Whose Egg is Mightier than the Pen.

HOLIDAYS

⁷
The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forevermore

He who has not been at a tavern knows not what a paradise it is O holy tavern! O miraculous tavern!—holy, because no carking cares are there, nor weariness, nor pain, and miraculous, because of the sprits, which themselves turn round and round!

He had scarcely gone a short league, when Fortune, that was conducting his affairs from good to better, discovered to him the road, where he also espied an Inn. Now musing o'er the changing scene
Farmers behind the tavern screen
Collect, with elbows idly press'd
On hob, reclines the corner's guest,
Reading the news to readt again

Puffing the while his red-tapt pipe
He dreams o'er troubles nearly ripe,
Yet, wimter's leisure to regale,
Hopes better times, and sips his ale.
CLARE—Shepherd's Calendar.

¹ The Jackdaw sat in the Cardinal's chair!
 Bishop and Abbot and Prior were there,
 Many a monk and many a friar,
 Many a knight and many a squire,
 With a great many more of lesser degree,—
 In sooth a goodly company,
 And they served the Lord Primate on bended knee

Never, I ween,
 Was a prouder seen,
 Read of in books or dreamt of in dreams,
 Than the Cardinal Lord Archbishop of Rheims R. H. BARHAM—Ingoldsby Legends The Jackdaw of Rheims

² An old miser kept a tame jackdaw, that used to steal pieces of money, and hide them in a hole, which a cat observing, asked, "Why he would hoard up those round shining things that he could make no use of?" "Why," said the jackdaw, "my master has a whole chestfull, and makes no more use of them than I do"

JANUARY

³ Janus was invoked at the commencement of most actions, even in the worship of the other gods the votary began by offering wine and incense to Janus. The first month in the year was named from him, and under the title of Matu-tinus he was regarded as the opener of the day.
 Hence he had charge of the gates of Heaven, and hence, too, all gates, Januae, were called after him, and supposed to be under his care.
 Hence, perhaps, it was, that he was represented with a staff and key, and that he was named the Opener (Patulcius), and the Shutter (Clusius).

 And Mjn the darkest meaning of a lie
 Thus cried the Jessamine among the flowers,
 How justly doth a lie
 Draw on its head despair!
 Among the fragrant spirits of the bowers
 The boldest and the strongest stall was I Although so fair,

Therefore from Heaven
 A stronger perfume unto me was given
 Than any blossom of the summer hours
 LELAND—Jessamine

⁸ Among the flowers no perfume is like mine;
 That which is best in me comes from within.
 So those in this world who would rise and shine
 Should seek internal excellence to win
 And though 'tis true that falsehood and despair
 Meet in my name, yet bear it still in mind
That where they meet they perish All is fair
 When they are gone and nought remains behind

1
Do you recall that night in June
Upon the Danube River,
We listened to the landler-tune,
We watched the moonbeams quiver
CHARLES H. ADDÉ—Danube River.

2
I gazed upon the glorious sky
And the green mountains round,
And thought that when I came to lie
At rest within the ground,
'Twere pleasant, that in flowery June,
When brooks send up a cheerful tune,
And groves a joyous sound,
The sexton's hand, my grave to make,
The rich, green mountain-turf should break.
BRYANT—June

3
What joy have I in June's return?
My feet are parched—my eyeballs burn,
I scent no flowery gust,
But faint the flagging Zephyr springs,
With dry Macadam on its wings,
And turns me "dust to dust."
HOOD—Town and Country Ode Imitated from Horace

4

11 If it's near dinner time, the foreman takes out his watch when the jury have retired and says "Dear me, gentlemen, ten minutes to five, I declare! I dine at five, gentlemen." "So do I," says everybody else except two men who ought to have dined at three, and seem more than half disposed to stand out in consequence. The foreman smiles, and puts up his watch. "Well, gentlemen, what do we say? Plaintiff, defendant, gentlemen? I rather think so far as I am concerned, gentlemen—I say I rather think—but don't let that influence you—I rather think the plaintiff's the man." Upon this two or three other men are sure to say they think so too—as of course they do, and then they get on very unanimously and comfortably

Two Trav'lers found an Oyster in their way,
Both fierce, both hungry, the dispute grew strong,
While Scale in hand Dame Justice pass'd along.

On Leven's banks, while free to rove,
And tune the rural pipe to love,

No rocks impede thy dimpling course,
That sweetly waibles o'er its bed,
With white, round, polish'd pebbles spread

2 The first thing naturally when one enters a scholar's study or library, is to look at his books. One gets a notion very speedily of his tastes and the range of his pursuits by a glance round his book-shelves

HOLMES—Poet at the Breakfast Table VIII

3 What a place to be in is an old library! It seems as though all the souls of all the writers that have bequeathed their labours to these Bodleians were reposing here as in some dormitory, or middle state. I do not want to handle, to profane the leaves, their winding-sheets. I could as soon dislodge a shade. I seem to inhale learning, walking amid their foliage, and the odor of their old moth-scented coverings is fragrant as the first bloom of those scintial apples which grew amid the happy orchard

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd
At cards for kisses, Cupid paid,
He stakes his quiver, bow and arrows,
His mother's doves, and team of sparrows,
Loses them too, then down he throws
The coal of his lip,—the rose Growing on 's cheek (but none knows how)
With these, the crystal on his brow,
And then the dimple of his chin,
All these did my Campaspe win
At last he set her both his eyes,
She won, and Cupid blind did rise
O Love! hath she done this to thee?
What shall, alas! become of me?

Much Ado About Nothing Act II Sc 1. L
102.

25
Friendship is constant in all other things
Save in the office and affairs of love.
Therefore, all hearts in love use their own tongues,

Let every eye negotiate for itself
And trust no agent

Much Ado About Nothing Act II. Sc 1 L
182

26
Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps
Much Ado About Nothing Act III Sc 1 L
106

27
Upon this hint I spake,
She lov'd me for the dangers I had pass'd,
And I lov'd her, that she did pity them.
This only is the witchcraft I have us'd
Here comes the lady, let her witness it.
Othello Act I. Sc 3 L 166

- 1 Perdition catch my soul,
But I do love thee! and when I love thee not,
Chaos is come again
Othello Act III Sc 3. L 89
- 2 What! keep a week away? seven days and nights?
Eight score eight hours? and lovers' absent hours,
More tedious than the dial eight score times?
O, weary reckoning!
Othello Act III Sc 4 L 173
- 3 If heaven would make me such another world
Of one entire and perfect chrysolite,
I'd not have sold her for it
Othello Act V. Sc 2 L 144
- 4 Speak of me as I am, nothing extenuate
Nor set down aught in malice then must you speak
Of one that loved not wisely, but too well,
Of one not easily jealous, but, being wrought,
Perplexed in the extreme of one, whose hand
Like the base Indian, throw a pearl away, Richer than all his tribe of one, whose subdued eyes,
Albert unused to the melting mood,
Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees
Their medicinal gum
Othello Act V Sc 2 L 383 ("Base Indian" is "base Judean" in first folio)
- 5 There is no creature loves me,
And if I die, no soul shall pity me
Richard III Act V Sc 3 L 200
- 6 From love's weak childish bow she lives un-harm'd Romeo and Juliet Act I Sc 1 ("Uncharm'd" instead of "unharm'd" in Folio and early ed.)
- 7 Love is a smoke rais'd with the fume of sighs,
Being purg'd, a fire sparking in a lover's eyes,
Being vex'd, a sea nouriish'd with lovers' tears
What is it else? a madness most discreet,
A choking gall and a preserving sweet
Romeo and Juliet Act I. Sc 1 L. 196
- 8 Steal love's sweet bait from fearful hooks Romeo and Juliet Act I Sc 5 Chorus at end (Not in Folio)
(See also LXLX)
- 9 Speak but one rhyme, and I am satisfied,
Cry but—"Ay me!" pronounce but "love" and
"dove"
Romeo and Juliet Act II. Sc 1 L 9
- 10 See, how she leans her cheek upon her hand!
O, that I were a glove upon that hand,
That I might touch that cheek!
Romeo and Juliet Act II Sc 2. L 23
- 11 O, Romeo, Romeo! wherefore art thou, Romeo?
Romeo and Juliet. Act II Sc 2 L 33
- 12 For stony limits cannot hold love out,
And what love can do that dares love attempt
Romeo and Juliet. Act II. Sc 2 L 67

- 13 At lovers' perjuries,
They say, Jove laughs
Romeo and Juliet Act II Sc 2 L 92
(See also DRYDEN)
- 14 My bounty is as boundless as the sea,
My love as deep, the more I give to thee
The more I have, for both are infinite
Romeo and Juliet Act II Sc 2 L 133
- 15 Love goes toward love as school-boys from their books,
But love from love, toward school with heavy looks
Romeo and Juliet Act II Sc 2. L 157
- 16 It is my soul that calls upon my name,
How silver-sweet sound lovers' tongues by night,
Like soft music to attending ears
Romeo and Juliet Act II Sc 2 L 165
- 17 'Tis almost morning, I would have thee gone
And yet no further than a wanton's bird,
Who lets it hop a little from her hand,
Like a poor prisoner in his twisted gyves,
And with a silk thread plucks it back again,
So loving-jealous of his liberty
Romeo and Juliet. Act II. Sc 2 L 177
- 18 Love's heralds should be thoughts,
Which ten times faster glide than the sun's beams,
Driving back shadows over louring hills,
Therefore do numble-pinion'd doves draw love,
And therefore hath the wind-swift Cupid wings
Romeo and Juliet Act II Sc 5 L 4
- 19 Therefore love moderately, long love doth so,
Too swift arrives as tardy as too slow
Romeo and Juliet Act II. Sc 6 L 14
- 20 Give me my Romeo, and, when he shall die,
Take him, and cut him out in little stars,
And he will make the face of heaven so fine,
And all the world will be in love with night,
And pay no worship to the garish sun
Romeo and Juliet Act III. Sc 2 L 21.
- 21 Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks
Within his bending sickle's compass come;
Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks,
But bears it out even to the edge of doom Sonnet CXVI.
- 22 They say all lovers swear more performance than they are able, and yet reserve an ability that they never perform
Troilus and Cressida. Act III Sc 2 L 91
- 23 For to be wise, and love
Exceeds man's might; that dwells with gods above
Troilus and Cressida Act III Sc 2 L 163
- 24 The noblest hateful love that e'er I heard of Troilus and Cressida Act IV Sc 1 L. 33
(See also LXLX)
- 25 O spirit of love! how quick and fresh art thou,
That notwithstanding thy capacity
Receiveth as the sea, nought enters there,

Of what validity and pitch soe'er,
But falls into abatement and low price,
Even in a minute!

Twelfth Night Act I Sc 1 L 9

1
Then let thy love be younger than thyself,
Or thy affection cannot hold the bent

Twelfth Night Act II Sc 4 L 37

2
She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek, she pin'd in thought,
And with a green and yellow melancholy
She sat like patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief

Twelfth Night Act II. Sc 4 L. 114

3
Love sought is good, but given unsought is better

Twelfth Night Act III Sc 1. L 167.

5
Love is your master, for he masters you,
And he that is so yoked by a fool,
Methinks, should not be choiced for wise

Two Gentlemen of Verona Act I. Sc 1. L 39.

6
And writers say, as the most forward bud
Is eaten by the canker ere it blow,
Even so by love the young and tender wit
Is turn'd to folly, blasting in the bud,
Losing his verdure even in the prime

Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act I Sc 1. L. 45.

7
How wayward is this foolish love,
That, like a testy babe, will scratch the nurse
And presently, all humbled, kiss the rod

Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act I. Sc 2. L 57.

8
O, how this spring of love resembleth
Th' uncertain glory of an April day,
Which now shows all the beauty of the sun,
And by and by a cloud takes all away!

Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act I. Sc. 3 L 84

9
Didst thou but know the only touch of love,
Thou wouldst as soon go kindle fire with snow,
As seek to quench the fire of love with words

Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act II Sc 7 L

10
I do not seek to quench your love's hot fire,
But qualify the fire's extreme rage,
Lest it should burn above the bounds of reason

Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act II. Sc 7 L

11
Except I be by Sylvia in the night,
There is no music in the nightingale

Venus and Adonis L 123

13
What 'tis to love? how want of love tormenteth?

Venus and Adonis. L. 202.

14
When you loved me I gave you the whole sun and stars to play with I gave you eternity in a single moment, strength of the mountains in one clasp of your arms, the volume of all the seas in one impulse of your soul A moment only, but was it not enough? Were you not paid then for all the rest of your struggle on earth?
When I opened the gates of paradise, were you blind? Was it nothing to you? When all the stars sang in your ears and all the winds swept you the heart of heaven, were you deaf? were you dull? was I no more to you than a bone to a dog? Was it not enough? We spent eternity together, and you ask me for a little lifetime more We possessed all the universe together, and you ask me to give you my scanty wages as well I have given you the greatest of all things, and you ask me to give you little things. I gave you your own soul you ask me for my body as a plaything Was it not enough? Was it not enough?

The cliff, Sweet, of your skyward-jetting soul,—

Dry down and perish to the foodless root.

Majestic flower! How purely beautiful
Thou art, as rising from thy bower of green,
Those dark and glossy leaves so thick and full,
Thou standest like a high-born forest queen
Among thy maidens clustering round so fair,—
I love to watch thy sculptured form unfolding,
And look into thy depths, to image there
A fairy cavern, and while thus beholding,
And while thy breeze floats o'er thee, matchless flower,
I breathe the perfume, delicate and strong,
That comes like incense from thy petal-bower,
My fancy roams those southern woods along,
Beneath that glorious tree, where deep among The unsummed leaves thy large white flower-cups hung!
